CHICKEN LIFE CYCLE

STAGE 1 - EGG

A chicken's life begins inside an egg. Hens lay the eggs and keep them warm through incubation, either naturally or in an incubator.

STAGE 2 - CHICK

When the egg hatches, a fluffy chick emerges with soft down feathers. It needs warmth, food, and care to grow quickly and prepare for the next stage.

STAGE 3 - JUVENILE CHICKEN

As chicks grow, they develop feathers and start to look like adult chickens. Females are called pullets, and males are called cockerels.

STAGE 4 - ADULT CHICKEN

When fully grown, chickens become adults. Hens lay eggs to start the cycle again, and roosters protect the flock. They have the skills they need to thrive.

	I clap as I walk, I'm light on your feet, Perfect for sand or the summer heat. I've got no laces, just a simple strap, What am I, with a flip and a flap?

	I'm a lotion or spray, a shield you apply, To keep your skin safe under the sky. I block out the rays that can burn or sting, What am I, your summer must-bring?
--	---

	I light up the night with a colorful show, With a boom and a crackle, I steal the glow. I'm a celebration, a spark in the dark, What am I, that leaves the sky with a mark?
--	--

	I soar through the air when given a throw, Round and flat, with a spin I go. I'm a game, a toy, a catch in the park, What am I, that flies till I arc?
--	---

	I'm a treat on a stick, both fruity and cold, I melt in the sun, so I must be controlled. Lick me or bite me, I'm a summer delight, What am I, that cools you just right?
--	--

I dance on the water, powered by air,
With a mast and a sail, I glide without care.
I carry you gently, or race with great speed,
What am I, fulfilling a sailor's need?

I'm a place to sit under the sun,
Fold me up when the day is done.
I'm your companion for sand and sea,
What am I, where you relax with glee?

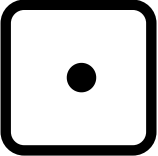

I rest by the shore, where the ocean meets land,
A home once alive, now held in your hand.
With spirals and patterns, a natural delight,
What am I, a small treasure in sight?

Get To Know Brown Bears

Brown bears are amazing animals! They are really big and super fuzzy. Most brown bears have thick brown fur, but sometimes their fur can be a little lighter or darker, kind of like shades of chocolate! These bears have round ears, a big snout, and really sharp claws that they use for digging and catching food.

When it comes to food, brown bears are not picky eaters. They love all kinds of snacks! They eat berries, nuts, plants, fish, and even insects. If you're lucky, you might see a bear fishing in a river. They're really good at catching fish with their claws.

Brown bears live in forests, mountains, and near rivers. They like places where there's lots of food and places to hide. While you're traveling in North Carolina, you might spot a brown bear in a forest, but don't worry—they usually try to stay away from people.

Here's a fun fact!

Brown bears love to take loooong naps during the winter. This special kind of nap is called hibernation, and it helps them rest up while food is hard to find. Also, even though they look big and slow, brown bears can run super fast, almost as fast as a car on a neighborhood street! Cool, right? Just remember, if you see a brown bear, enjoy watching it from far away. They're beautiful, wild creatures who like their space.

WHAT ARE PETROGLYPHS AND ROCK ART?

A long, long time ago, before there were books or computers, people told stories and shared ideas by drawing pictures on rocks! These pictures are called petroglyphs or rock art. They were made by Native Americans and other ancient people thousands of years ago. They used sharp tools or stones to carve shapes, animals, and symbols into the rocks. Sometimes, they even painted on the rocks using natural colors made from plants and minerals.

These drawings were like messages or stories. They might show animals they hunted, important events, or even things they believed in. It's like looking at a secret code from the past!

CREATE YOUR OWN ROCK ART!

Now it's your turn to be like the ancient artists! Think about what story or message you want to share. Maybe you want to draw your favorite animal, something you love to do, or a symbol that means something special to you. Use paper and crayons, markers, or pencils to create your own "rock art." Pretend your paper is a big rock, just like the ones people used long ago.

When you're done, share your drawing and explain what it means—just like the ancient people might have done!
